

VMworld 2019 Speaker Interest Form Information

Interested in speaking at VMworld 2019? We want to hear from you!

If you are a VMware customer, partner, or community member and are interested in speaking at VMworld, please complete an interest form, which requires less information than our previous call for proposals form. The VMworld content team created the new interest form to lighten the submission load for VMware customers and partners and to make it similar to the process already used for the VMTN Community.

Use these links to get started:

VMware Partner and Customer Speaker Interest Form:

VMTN Community Speaker Interest Form for {CODE} Sessions:

Before you continue completing the form, you'll be asked to login to your My VMworld account. If you do not have an account, you'll be able to create one. Once logged in, the forms ask for the following basic information:

- First name
- Last name
- Title
- Email
- Company
- Industry
- Country

Next, you'll provide your product and learning track preference.

For the final section of the form, please clearly articulate the following:

- What problem(s) did you or your customer face?
- On which solution(s) did you decide?
- How did you implement those solution(s)?

REALIZE WHAT'S POSSIBLE.™

- What factors contributed to your or your customer's success or failure?

Content Team Review and Notification Information:

The VMworld content team will review all interest forms and, if there is an opportunity for inclusion in the program, will contact you for additional information.

Links to the forms will be available on www.vmworld.com from March 19 to April 16, 2019. If the VMworld content team is interested in your submission, they will be in contact with you.

All submitters will receive an email notification of their submission status on June 11.
